combine two String's from 2 different models into one file? I'm having a bit of trouble finding a solution to this: I have 2 models (I'm using Laravel)
A: class A extends Model { public $table = 'a'; // other vars/methods } and B: class B extends Model { public $table = 'b'; // other vars/methods }
Now, I want to have a news page on a website that shows recent news from both models. Since Laravel doesn't have a built in DB results I can simply retrieve all A and B results and join them into a single array: class NewsController extends Controller { public function showNews($model) { $model->whereIn('type', ['A', 'B']); // Or even $model->whereIn('type', 'A', 'B') // Or maybe: $models = array('A', 'B'); $models[] = new A; $models[] = new B; $model->whereIn('id', $models) 50b96ab0b6 you sleep, a new study published in the Journal of the Royal Society of Medicine suggests that the immune system is particularly active in the 24 hours before you wake up. The study, which was conducted at the Norwegian School of Sport Sciences, looked at the sleeping patterns of the entire population of continental Europe, and concluded that during the hours before someone wakes up, the immune system is in action. During the time that the immune system is most active, researchers say that a man is about 30% more likely to get sick than when he's most active in the day. The study does not explain why. Scientists' understanding of the relationship between sleep and the immune system has been transformed in recent years. The study shows that most immune cells are activated during sleep - an effect which has not been previously identified. Researchers were able to pinpoint the immune cells most associated with the immune-stimulating effects of sleep. The study suggests that circulating immune cells called monocytes are drawn to organs during the night, where they can be activated by substances produced by the tissue. Researchers looked at blood from 27,000 people in 20 countries, and found that the size of the immune cells in circulation was highest during sleep, before people woke up. The researchers found that immune cell activity was influenced by age, body mass index, season, and physical activity. As the study concludes, the researchers believe that the immune system is important for the body's resistance to pathogens.

They also believe that it may be a trigger for other brain activity that occurs during sleep. The study's lead researcher concludes that 'hostile viruses are more active during the night, before people wake up.' Are the immune cells "activated" by the micro-
